WHAT'S GOING ON WITH MISFIT STUDIOS

Here we are, a new month, and Metahuman Martial Arts 3e is still suffering from slow progress for other delays. Getting the Adequate Commoner manuscript ready for layout was a lot more work than expected, so that ate up most of April, coupled with the fact that we've decided to upgrade all of AQ's interior art to color, which takes yet more time. Once it is out the door, though, a certain martial arts book rises to our number one priority.

Interface was originally intended to help humanity by studying it in order to learn ways to reduce crime. But when an attempt to steal the artificial intelligence goes awry, the software becomes corrupt and bent on ruling humanity in order to save it. To do so, it has built itself a powerful robotic body that can take over and control other machines.

Junk is a scrapyard owner who actively participates in his community. So, when a bunch of local kids are gunned down during the course of a crime, he takes matters into his own hands. Using his homemade Scrapsuit, a piecemeal suit of armor, Junk now stalks the city streets fighting crime.
